

I am a Flight Attendant for a major US Air Carrier, and I am very concerned about allowing passengers to use their cell phones onboard the aircraft while in flight. Add cellphone conversations to the list of problems including liquor, and cramped cabins, it could cause more security concerns, adding tempers to rise between passengers. Not to mention causing a huge problem in the event we need to prepare the cabin for an evacuation or informing our passengers of an emergency. Please reconsider allowing cellphone use onboard our nations fleet of aircraft, in the interest of our security and safety.

Thank you
